Letter from Traveler.

A[illegible], April 18, 1865.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

I had time at San Francisco only to begin a letter about the Public Schools of that city. At 11 o'clock A. M. of the 11th inst., Mr. [illegible] W. Kennedy, a recently chosen member of the Board of Education, at the request of Mr. Tait, Superintendent, who was engaged in examining teachers, very kindly took me in a carriage to visit, first, the Female High School, corner of Bush and Stockton streets. Mr. Ellis H. Holmes, is Principal, having three lady Assistants. There are eighty six pupils, graduates of the Grammar schools, who pass through a course of three years in this school, and at the close, receive a diploma. The course of study and text books are given in the By Laws of the Board of Education, a copy of which I have sent to Mr. E., one of your directors.

When we entered, the young ladies were going through their singing exercise under their Music Master, who also accompanied them with the piano. The whole company, with one or six exceptions, assisted in singing, and with much spirit and harmony. Next they repaired to their respective rooms, the middle class remaining for an exercise in reading; and I have seldom heard such reading. The sentiment and soul of the piece was expressed in the intonation, force and manner of the young ladies, commending themselves and their teachers.

Our next visit was to the junior class under Miss Bordwell, who was hearing them in Geography, with the use of outline maps. Physical Geography was also introduced into the lesson, and something of the political Geography of the country Hindostan, then under review.

Physical Geography is receiving a good degree of attention, both in the Grammar and the High Schools of the city, although suitable text-books are much needed. Attention is also given to map-drawing in both of these schools, and some very fine specimens were exhibited.

Our next visit was to the room of Miss Austin, who was exercising the senior class in the review of English classical authors, and the distinguished poetry and prose writers of our own and other countries. The young ladies showed a good degree of acquaintance with, and appreciation of, English literature. The teacher was especially at home in their studies.

Our next visit was to the primary school on Market near Fifth street, under the care of Mrs. Stout, as Principal, with seven assistants, having four hundred and ninety three pupils in charge, aged from six to thirteen, in eight rooms, which can, by sliding doors, be thrown into two rooms—one on the lower floor and one on the second floor, which is reached by two easy flights of stairs. Black boards ruled for writing, figures or charts, were around the rooms, and a musical instrument in each one. The seats are single, low, and very easy for the pupils. The exercises are varied frequently varied, and as several mothers, who happened to be present, testified, the children learn very rapidly. The schools had been fifteen minutes to remain, and Mrs. S. had the doors opened and the four older classes united in singing three or four songs, which they did with rousing voices and childlike heartiness, especially the patriotic songs. I would commend this arrangement of rooms for our new primary school building at Portland.

Near this school, on the same 100 vara lot, is the new Lincoln Grammar School building, which the city is erecting at a cost of $80,000, which, when furnished, will cost $[illegible].

The city has at least 100 lots set apart for free schools. The Board has just levied the extreme tax of thirty five cents on the hundred dollars for schools, and they intend to make their free schools superior to all others.

Yours,

TRAVELER.

Defiance to the Blue Laws.

PARTING CITY, Oregon, May 8, 1865.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

Our natural rights are interfered with. An old fogy Legislature have been trying to bring our God defying city into the pale of enlightened, moral society. A searcher of old records has dug out from ancient lore a tradition that the early inhabitants of Connecticut had a Sabbath, which is supposed to have been a day of rest from labor and secular business. Its observance was even enforced in a "blue law," which our ancient law makers have foisted upon us. Against this we do most emphatically and earnestly protest. Our location is over, or beyond the line; we belong to the digger part of the country. The gold diggers have no Sabbaths, so we will have none. With this determination, thus freely and emphatically declared, we ask to be "let alone" in the exercise of our natural rights. It is due to the world, and especially to all judicial and executive officers, for us to declare further that we will resist the enforcement of any "blue law" that would bring us within the pale of Connecticut morality. We have already collected a pile of eight hundred dollars, and we will gather more if needed. With these we will pelt any court, officer or gang who attempts to enforce an obsolete, antiquated Sabbath blue law among us. Our respected editor understands the value of the irresistible dollar as well as any man, and we fully expect his powerful aid in defence of our hearthstones. We never had a Sabbath in this prospective city—we will not have any, so help us almighty dollar.

[illegible]ATUS.

RELIGION AND PATRIOTISM.—The life of a great nation is of more value than many individual lives, however rich in all that makes life precious. Such a nation is not, and cannot be, the easily-constructed works of man; when perfected and wrought into a prosperously working organism, its destruction is a universal calamity. The preservation of the life of a nation which has accomplished the ends of all human Governments by affording protection to life and property, and securing the welfare of those who live under its sway, is sacred and religious, rather than a secular work. Government is a divine institution; "the powers that be are ordained of God." "To save the nation," says Henry Ward Beecher in a recent discourse, "is good work for Sunday and sanctuary. A Sunday too religious for patriotism, a church too sacred to be used for the rescue of the wretched, religious men so devout as to be neither just nor humane, are not Christians. They are not even Jewish, according to the nobler teachings of the prophets of that illustrious people. They belong rather to that degenerate day when men bound burdens upon their fellow men which they would not touch themselves with their little finger, when they devoured the houses of the poor, made long prayers, robed with broad phylacteries, tithed mint, anise and cummin, but omitted the weightier matters of the law.

Such men, trained to superstition, could not break the Sabbath, but they crucified the Savior. And there are men in our day who are ashamed to have introduced a patriotic subject, while they associate with complacency the crucifixion of millions of their fellow men."

Such are the men who speak of the issues which involve the very existence of our country as "questions of politics." Such are the priests, with leaden brains and hearts of ice, who speak of their sacerdotal functions as too awfully sacred to permit them to lift their voices to-day in the cause of Union, freedom and humanity.

PHOTOGRAPHY APPLIED TO TOPOGRAPHY.—Photography is superseding triangulation in France as a means of calculating distances and heights. By means of twenty one views taken from eighteen different points in less than sixty hours, an accurate plan of the city of [illegible] and of its environs, embracing an extent of more than twenty [illegible] meters square [illegible] was executed in sixty [illegible] which by triangulation would have taken two years to execute.

A PROSPEROUS CITY.—The city of Portland, Maine, had in 1811 a valuation of $[illegible], which was increased to $[illegible]. Her exports to foreign countries increased from $[illegible] in 1851, to $[illegible] in [illegible]. Her imports from $[illegible] in [illegible] to $[illegible], showing not only a growth of trade but an increase of wealth, unexampled by any city of New England during the same period.

All new dies made at the [illegible] Mint for coining money will, in accordance with the act of Congress, bear as a national motto "In God we trust."

The Strength of Republican Government

All knowledge that man acquires by experience is necessarily progressive. Experience perpetually suggests the utility of making changes and improvements in every system instituted by man. Political science cannot claim to be exempt from this general rule. Like all other things which are wrought out by human instrumentalities, this science does not immediately attain perfection. Its growth is gradual. It must avail itself of the benefits of past experience. A full knowledge of so extensive a science could not be acquired by man during the early periods of political society, and hence there can be no wonder that the forms of government which should successively arise, could not be foreknown and described even by the ablest thinkers of the olden time.

When our Government was formed it was altogether a novelty in politics. Nothing of a strictly analogous character had ever before been seen. Republican Governments at one time and another had appeared, but none of them were fashioned in the same manner as our own. Writers treated a republic as a modification of democracy, the least permanent, stable and powerful of all species of government. It remained to show the fallacy of this last position, and to prove that a republic, though more consistent with the liberty of the people than any other mode of government, was capable, also, of sustaining itself where either an aristocracy or a monarchy would have failed.

Our Government has, no question, been subjected to a severer trial than any other has ever experienced. It has sustained itself against a combination whose force was sufficient to have overwhelmed and utterly destroyed any other power in the world. Not only so, but it has disarmed its seditious and powerful assailants, and compelled them to beg for peace. Taken entirely by surprise at the commencement of the conflict, some time was required for it to adapt itself to its new situation, and to turn from the pursuits of peace to the business of making war. But when its armor was fairly on, and it gave itself up to the work before it, its enemies were speedily crushed to earth. The majesty of the people has vindicated and upheld the majesty of the Government, and the world has learned that a Republic which has its foundations in the affections of its people, can triumphantly live through any ordeal which it may have to encounter.

Recent events not only confirm our faith in the strength of Republican government, but also give us the most satisfactory assurances of the future permanence of our system. What conceivable calamity can hereafter come upon us, the equal of which our Government has not already successfully met? What can foreign foes hope to accomplish against us, when so formidable an insurrection as the one now quelled, has so signally failed? What sudden or dreadful blow can hereafter descend to produce confusion and disorder, when, by the violent death of our President, the nation has been already visited by the most appalling calamity that could have befallen it, and yet has escaped from the dangers that beset it? The country has been shaken by these repeated attacks, but the people, collecting all their strength, firm and self reliant as ever, pursued with invincible determination the only course that could lead to safety. Disregarding the seductive appeals of those who sought to beguile them from their instinctive and yet rational purpose to preserve their Government, their liberty and themselves, they struggled on until their work now seems finished. Their prescience is now apparent. Another great victory, perhaps the greatest ever achieved, has been gained by an intelligent civilization. It has been proved that a Republican form of government was the one best adapted to times of peace; now also it is shown to be the strongest of any during the exigences and trials of war.

PAPER CURRENCY AND GOLD.—It seems highly probable that the expenses of the Government will soon be reduced to such an extent that specie payments may be resumed. As the credit of the Nation grows firmer, gold declines. The time may ere long arrive when it will be at a scarcely appreciable premium. The Secretary of the Treasury in a late letter says:

A resumption of specie payments is with me a "cardinal point," because I believe that the specie basis is the only safe and healthy one for business, and because I am clearly of the opinion that the interests of capitalists and working men will be promoted by a return to it, but no policy could be more unwise than that which should attempt to accomplish it by such a curtailment of the currency as would prostrate or injuriously affect those great interests upon the prosperity of which the Government depends for its revenue, and which cannot be broken down or severely depressed without depriving labor of its proper reward.

It is a point much discussed, whether the rapid decline of gold is beneficial to the interests of the country. Many maintain that gold ought to fall slowly, and that its present rapid tendency downward, will discompose trade throughout the country. Granting this to be true, the inconvenience and loss that would result from it, would, it appears to us, be more than compensated by the steadiness that all branches of business would very soon assume.

MALIGNANCY OF THE REBELS.—Every day brings new proofs of the demoniacal spirit of those who are, and have been, engaged in the rebellion. From the time when, with fiendish glee, they heaped indignities upon the lifeless clay of the patriots who fell at Bull Run in the endeavor to save their country, there never has been any act too atrocious for them to perpetrate. Why need we mention the horrors of Libby prison, the outrages inflicted on the Union men of Tennessee and even upon their wives and sisters, the savage barbarity with which prisoners were treated at Andersonville, the frightful ferocity displayed at Fort Pillow and Plymouth, or the reckless and pitiless cruelty manifested even toward their own people when the rebels left Charleston and Richmond? These and other kindred misdeeds can never be sufficiently avenged. Lately we had another example of the spirit that actuates the chivalry. The most terrible and destructive steamboat disaster ever known, the explosion of the steamer Sultana, on the Mississippi, was caused by their making torpedoes of such an appearance that they resembled large pieces of coal and placing them where they would be most likely to be thrown into the furnaces as fuel. Barbarism never committed more hideous atrocities. Such a monster as this does Slavery generate. The world has learned that those who have long traded in human beings are capable of any crime. It was a mistake to suppose that they shared in the civilization and humanity of the present age.

LADY DROWNED.—A letter from the upper country was shown us last evening, which states that Mrs. Bassett, a lady of La Grande, was lately drowned in the endeavor to cross Dry Creek in the Blue mountains. The streams in that vicinity are said to be still very high.

Mr. Lincoln's Last Speech.

On the occasion of the capture of Richmond and the surrender of Lee's army, there was every demonstration of joy in Washington city. When President Lincoln returned from City Point after his visit to Richmond, Washington was illuminated. The streets were filled with a countless multitude. Thousands of persons repaired to the President's house, and, after several airs had been played by the bands in attendance, the President, in response to continuous calls, appeared at an upper window. He delivered the following speech, which has [illegible] his death took place three days after. [illegible] the last utterance of him whom we can think [illegible] country and who [illegible] we shall always mourn?

SPEECH OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN.

We meet this evening not in sorrow, but in gladness of heart. The evacuation of Petersburg and Richmond, and the surrender of the principal insurgent army, gives hope of a righteous and speedy peace, whose joyous expression cannot be restrained. In the midst of this, however, He from whom all blessings flow must not be forgotten. A call for a national thanksgiving is being prepared, and will be duly promulgated. Nor must those whose harder part gives us the cause of rejoicing be overlooked. Their honors must not be parcelled out with others. I myself was near the front, and had the high pleasure of transmitting much of the good news to you. But no part of the honor for plan or execution is mine. To Gen. Grant, his skillful officers and brave men, all belongs. The gallant navy stood ready, but was not in reach to take active part. By these recent successes the reinauguration of the national authority—reconstruction—which has had a large share of thought from the first, is pressed much more closely upon our attention. It is fraught with great difficulty. Unlike a case of war between independent nations, there is no authorized organ for us to treat with—no one man has authority to give up the rebellion for any other man. We simply must begin with and mould from disorganized and discordant elements. Nor is it a small additional embarrassment that we, the loyal people, differ among ourselves as to the mode, manner and measure of reconstruction.

As a general rule I abstain from reading the reports of attacks upon myself, wishing not to be provoked by that which I cannot properly give an answer. In spite of this precaution, however, it comes to my knowledge that I am much censured for some supposed agency in setting up and seeking to sustain the new State Government of Louisiana. In this I have done so much and no more than the public knows. In the annual message of December, 1863, and the accompanying proclamation, I presented a plan of reconstruction, as the phrase goes, which I promised if adopted by any State, would be acceptable to and sustained by the executive government of the nation. I distinctly stated that this was not the only plan which might possibly be acceptable, and I also distinctly protested that the executive claimed no right to say when or whether members should be admitted to seats in Congress from such States. This plan was submitted to the then Cabinet, and approved by every member of it. One of them suggested that I should then and in that connection apply the emancipation to the heretofore excepted parts of Virginia and Louisiana; that I should drop the suggestion about apprenticeship for freed people, and that I should omit the protest against my own power in regard to the admission of members of Congress. But even he approved every part and parcel of the plan which has since been employed or touched by the action of Louisiana. The new constitution of Louisiana, declaring emancipation for the whole State, practically applies the proclamation to the part previously excepted. It does not adopt apprenticeship for freed people, and is silent, as it could not well be otherwise, about the admission of members of Congress. So that as it applies to Louisiana every member of the Cabinet fully approved of the plan. The message went to Congress, and I received many commendations of the plan, written and verbal, and not a single objection to it from any professed emancipationist came to my knowledge until after the news reached Washington that the people of Louisiana had begun to move in accordance with it. From about July, 1862, I had corresponded with different persons supposed to be interested in seeking a reconstruction of a State Government for Louisiana. When the message of 1863, with the plan before mentioned, reached New Orleans, Gen. Banks wrote me that he was confident that the people, with his military co-operation, would reconstruct substantially on that plan. I wrote to him and some of them to try it. They tried it and the result is known. Such has been my only agency in getting up the Louisiana Government. As to sustaining it, my promise is out as before stated. But as bad promises are better broken than kept, I shall treat it as a bad promise, and break it whenever I shall be convinced that keeping it is adverse to the public interest, but I have not yet been so convinced.

I have been shown a letter on this subject, supposed to be an able one, in which the writer expresses regret that my mind has not seemed to be definitely fixed upon the question whether the seceded States, so called, are in the Union or out of it. It would perhaps add astonishment to his regret were he to learn that since I have found professed Union men endeavoring to answer that question, I have purposely forborne any public expression upon it. As appears to me, that question has not been nor yet is a practically material one, and that any discussion of it while it thus remains practically immaterial, could have no effect other than the mischievous one of dividing our friends. As yet, whatever it may become, that question is bad as the basis of a controversy, and good for nothing at all—a merely pernicious abstraction. We all agree that the seceded States, so called, are out of their proper practical relation with the Union, and that the sole object of the Government, civil and military, in regard to those States, is to again get them into that proper practical relation. I believe that it is not only possible, but in fact easier, to do this without deciding or even considering whether those States have ever been out of the Union than with it. Finding themselves safely at home, it would be utterly immaterial whether they had been abroad. Let us all join in doing the acts necessary to restore the proper practical relations between these States and the Union, and each forever after innocently indulge his own opinion whether in doing the acts he brought the States from without into the Union, or only gave them proper assistance, they never having been out of it.

The amount of constituency, so to speak, on which the Louisiana government rests, would be more satisfactory to all if it contained 50,000 or 30,000, or even 20,000, instead of 12,000, as it does. It is also unsatisfactory to some that the elective franchise is not given to the colored man. I would myself prefer that it were now conferred on the very intelligent, and on those who serve our cause as soldiers. Still, the question is not whether the Louisiana government, as it stands, is quite all that is desirable. The question is, will it be wiser to take it as it is and help to improve it, or to reject and disperse it? Can Louisiana be brought into proper practical relation with the Union sooner by sustaining or by discarding her new State government? Some 12,000 voters in the heretofore slave State of Louisiana have sworn allegiance to the Union, assumed to be the rightful political power of the State, held elections, organized a State government, adopted a free State Constitution, giving the benefit of public schools equally to black and white, and empowering the Legislature to confer the elective franchise upon the colored man. This Legislature has already voted to ratify the constitutional amendment recently passed by Congress, abolishing slavery throughout the nation. These 12,000 persons are thus fully committed to the Union and to perpetuate freedom in the State—committed to the very things, and nearly all things the nation wants—and they ask the nation's recognition and its assistance to make good this committal. Now, if we reject and spurn them, we do our utmost to disorganize and disperse them. We, in fact, say to the white man: You are worthless or worse; we will neither help you nor be helped by you. To the blacks, we say: This cup of liberty which these, your old masters, held to your lips, we will dash from you, and leave you to the chances of gathering the spilled and scattered contents in some vague and undefined when, where and how. If this course, discouraging and paralyzing both white and black, has any tendency to bring Louisiana into proper practical relations with the Union, I have so far been unable to perceive it. If, on the contrary, we recognize and sustain the new government of Louisiana, the converse of all this is made true. We encourage the hearts and nerve the arms of 12,000 to adhere to their work and argue for it, and proselyte for it, and fight for it, and feed it, and grow it, and ripen it to a complete success. The colored man, too, in seeing all united for him, is inspired with vigilance, and energy, and daring to the same end. Grant that he desires the elective franchise, will he not attain it sooner by saving the already advanced steps toward it than by running backward over them? Concede that the new government of Louisiana is only to what it should be as the egg is to the fowl, we shall sooner have the fowl by hatching the egg than by smashing it. [Laughter.] Again, if we reject Louisiana we also reject one vote in favor of the proposed Amendment to the National Constitution. To meet this proposition it has been argued that no more than three-fourths of those States which have not attempted secession are necessary to validly ratify the amendment. I do not commit myself against this further than to say that such a ratification would be questionable, and sure to be persistently questioned, while a ratification by three-fourths of all the States would be unquestioned and unquestionable. I repeat the question: Can Louisiana be brought into proper practical relation with the Union sooner by sustaining or by discarding her new State government? What has been said of Louisiana will apply generally to other States. And yet so great peculiarities pertain to each State, and such important and sudden changes occur in the same State, and withal so new and unprecedented is the whole case, that no exclusive and inflexible plan can safely be prescribed as to details and collaterals. Such exclusive and inflexible plan would surely become a new entanglement. Important principles may and must be inflexible. In the present situation, as the phrase goes, it may be my duty to make some new announcement to the people of the South. I am considering, and shall not fail to act when satisfied that action will be proper.

The President, from the delivery of the above speech, was frequently interrupted by applause, and at its conclusion, in the midst of the cheering, the band struck up a patriotic air, when he bowed and retired.

GEN. BUTLER AND GRANT.—The Washington correspondent of the Boston [illegible] writes [illegible] be the result of the investigation [illegible] at Fort Fisher, the military career of that man is ended, [illegible]

General Grant has made up his mind [illegible] him and he [illegible] He has never forgotten [illegible] takes, and he will never forgive [illegible] He can take a very [illegible] order [illegible] he dashed the [illegible] which had the appearance [illegible] The means to stick [illegible] bellion is crushed and the country may be thankful to that somebody has got a little decision of character.

STATE RIGHTS.—A late number of the New York Day Book says:

It is a common [illegible] of the war [illegible] that they do not desire to conquer the South, but that all the North asks of her is to submit to the Constitution and the laws which means, if it has any meaning at all, that she must submit to the Constitution as the North understands it, and to the laws that it may pass.

Precisely so. The Constitution is to be interpreted by loyal men, and rebels are to have the benefit of that interpretation.

RICHMOND PAPERS.—The greater part of the newspaper offices in Richmond were destroyed in the common ruin which the rebels left behind them. The papers whose rhodomontade was so truly astounding, have nearly all ceased to exist. The Whig alone remains. Could the papers now speak they would no doubt say a word or two that the [illegible] of the [illegible] blessings, and that the arms can protect the country easier, now that there are so few places to defend.

City Ordinance No. 197.

AN ORDINANCE, to prevent and abate nuisances.

The City of Portland does ordain as follows:

SEC. 1. That the owners or occupants of any house, store, building or premises in the City of Portland, to which a privy belongs or appertains, and who use and keep the same in such a condition as to cause a noisome or offensive smell, thereby becoming a public nuisance, and who do not remove or abate said nuisance within twenty-four hours after being so ordered by the City Marshal, shall be fined by the Recorder on conviction thereof, not less than twenty nor more than fifty dollars. Immediately after which conviction, the Marshal shall proceed to remove or abate said nuisance at the expense of the person or persons so offending.

SEC. 2. No person or persons shall cast, leave, or keep in or adjoining any street, lane or alley, square or public place, or in any yard, lot or premises in the City of Portland within the following limits: Between College and "D" streets and between tenth (10th) street and the Willamette river, any refuse vegetable substance, or filth of any kind whatever, which may cause any noisome or unwholesome smell, under the penalty of twenty dollars for each and every offence.

SEC. 3. On the non-payment of any fine or costs imposed upon any person or persons convicted for the violation of any of the provisions of this Ordinance, the Recorder may imprison the person or persons so convicted, and neglecting or refusing to pay said fine, for any period, not less than ten days.

TRADE OF THE COLUMBIA RIVER. — [illegible] river [illegible] heretofore been [illegible] early days [illegible] from points above [illegible] of the transportation [illegible] as far [illegible] from the [illegible] all the trade of [illegible] of Government [illegible] to supply the mining [illegible] of life, and the only [illegible] with occasional [illegible] slaughtered there [illegible] Last year [illegible] into account, and the present season [illegible] very materially larger. [illegible] the chief article [illegible] added to, so that the profits of [illegible] freight [illegible] proper head [illegible] wool that has been received [illegible] by the boats of the O. S. N. Company, some [illegible] of it from Walla Walla valley. We [illegible] to note this indication of the prosperity of the upper Columbia country.

PUBLIC ENTERPRISE. — The residents of First street are [illegible] delinquent the present season [illegible] making preparations for the improvement [illegible] streets. We notice that Second, Third, Fourth, and other streets are [illegible] improvement [illegible] having at last specified the style of [illegible] will be a great relief to the city [illegible] will lay [illegible] in accordance with those plans. The city is [illegible] a remarkable change, and needs [illegible] that is impossible to be made until [illegible] sewerage — is regulated by the council [illegible] can be made, and none can doubt that [illegible] needed.

TAKING THE CENSUS. — Mr. John Doling, County Assessor, [illegible] making the assessment of Multnomah county, [illegible] in accordance with the provisions [illegible] is taking, in connection with the assessment, [illegible] and complete census of the county, including the number of inhabitants [illegible] of land under cultivation, the number of bushels of wheat, oats, barley, [illegible] potatoes, apples, [illegible] also the amount of [illegible] barrels of salmon, baskets [illegible] number of mules, horses, cattle, hogs and sheep [illegible] required of the assessor [illegible] in each county of the State, thus making a thorough census.

POLICE MATTERS. — [illegible] Court yesterday [illegible] was relieved of $14 fine and cost, for [illegible] careless [illegible] a very [illegible] manner along First street [illegible] body of a dicture, with more than one beast, which was [illegible] would [illegible] the system, but which [illegible] by the [illegible] Nathan [illegible] fellow, indulged in anything but the [illegible] spirits to keep his spirits up [illegible] effect upon his [illegible] the level of the street, created great [illegible] caused him to appear before the Recorder [illegible] and again take his departure "a better [illegible] for the future.

[illegible] TO SEE [illegible] — The [illegible] paper, says a poor bachelor editor down East, has given [illegible] one of moderate dimensions, a perfect "duck" of a bonnet, minus the bunch of assorted vegetables which [illegible] rested on the top of the wearer's head, [illegible] it is possible the portable advertisement of a green grocer shop [illegible] ladies under talk [illegible] about the gentle-[illegible] and that [illegible] a flat headed [illegible] Pretty [illegible] who let them go.

[illegible] — The [illegible] steamer has [illegible] and will again resume her trips [illegible] the Cascades to-day. The Hoot, with the exception of [illegible] twenty days, aside from Sundays, has made regular trips to the Cascades from [illegible] since the winter of 1862 and '63. We learn, however, that it is the intention of the company to haul her [illegible] and put her through a general course of [illegible] the next month, building almost entire new upper [illegible]

ARRESTS. — Officer Saunders yesterday removed two "happy" sleepers from the sidewalks of the city, which [illegible] properly come under the heading of [illegible] a few hours after their removal from beneath the [illegible] influence of a grocery close by, exhibited signs of vitality, and were recognized as specimens of the [illegible] family, hence will appear before the Recorder this evening upon a bill of Jones and Pierce.

A NEW STEAMER. — The O. S. N. Company have just [illegible] a new side-wheel steamer, as near the pattern of the Onward as could be made, for use in this city [illegible] to be placed [illegible] their new [illegible] attached to a splice. The boat [illegible] by Captain [illegible] built [illegible] 85 feet long, [illegible] feet beam [illegible]

A FINE LOT OF GOLD. — Mr. Mark A. King, assayer for Wells, Fargo & Co., of this city, yesterday [illegible] a lot of gold from [illegible] deposited by Mr. [illegible] from the new diggings [illegible] the river of that name. The gold [illegible] $17.80 per ounce, and we [illegible] there is an abundance of it to be obtained in those parts.

HIGH WATER. — The Willamette river, after receding [illegible] inches, began to a stand [illegible] and again [illegible] rising. According to the testimony of Capt. Salter, given by [illegible] no fears need be entertained of a flood. [illegible] that there will be no flood from melting snow [illegible] It is only when carried off by a warm rain that the floods are to be expected.

THE RECEPTION. — By the [illegible] we learn that the [illegible] had made [illegible] for a pic nic yesterday at a grove near the residence of Mr. E. N. Cooke, for the purpose of receiving and entertaining the delegation of our firemen, delivering the Engine lately sold by Company No. 2, to the Capital city.

CONTRACT CARRIER. — Mr. W. O. Ballard [illegible] of the agency of the MORNING OREGONIAN [illegible] to Mr. Jas. L. McCown. All amounts [illegible] up to the 13th will be collected by Mr. Ballard; the present week, and future collections, by the new carrier.

THE BUSTER SOUTH. — The brig Sunny South, Captain [illegible] so soon as freight is discharged, will leave [illegible] street wharf for Sp[illegible] and other points [illegible] to receive her outward cargo.

[illegible] — Mr. Sterling, secretary of the [illegible] gives notice that [illegible] Oregon City, at the same rates of toll [illegible]

FIRE ALARM. — The fire department were [illegible] an alarm at 11 o'clock last night. The machines [illegible] into First [illegible] and were sent back to their houses.

THE SIERRA NEVADA. — This steamship, Capt. [illegible] would leave San Francisco [illegible] yesterday, according to the advertisement.

GETTING BROWN. — [illegible] being [illegible] the winter [illegible] customary [illegible]

WATER AND GAS. — Persons having business with the Gas Light or Water Companies [illegible] notice that the new office is opened in Hancock's building.

[illegible] — By notice in another column [illegible] the pews of the Presbyterian Church [illegible] Monday next.

It is announced in the Eastern papers that the Methodist Church South has become completely disorganized in all the slave States which have been brought under Federal rule. In Missouri the church is a complete wreck, and there is a general disposition to join the Methodist Episcopal Church. In Kentucky the same state of things exists, and there is every indication that the Southern Methodist Church has received a wound from which it will not recover. Dr. Parsons, [illegible] most minister, with several laymen, has [illegible] and re-joined the old church. He has been [illegible] by several other ministers [illegible]

THE STATE AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY. — We [illegible] that the coming State Agricultural Fair will be a great improvement on the [illegible] The [illegible] which [illegible] of the State [illegible] year [illegible] the Agricultural Society are [illegible] to the [illegible] farmers and farmers' [illegible] should [illegible]

[illegible] we wish to see the [illegible] brought to the Fair [illegible] beauty and [illegible] We [illegible] a little more care and ex-[illegible] will [illegible] than a [illegible] may be [illegible] A high [illegible] always in the market with the butcher, at a very [illegible] A half blooded [illegible] is worth twice as much [illegible] What farmer who has [illegible] keeps crossing with fine [illegible] stock, does not know that he has greatly added to their value? Sheep raised for wool or [illegible] pay well. We shall soon have [illegible] which will require fine [illegible] as well as coarse [illegible] will be much called [illegible] will be in great demand. And for blankets and other [illegible] the Cotswold and New Oxford sheep will be wanted. In our opinion, sheep should be kept up as near as possible to the standard of these varieties. There are now the best varieties of hogs in Oregon. These are in the hands of a few farmers. They should be propagated everywhere. The land alligator [illegible] should remain only in memory.

We want fine specimens of the animals we have named, on exhibition at the Fair, and we want the people to see them, that they may form their own opinions of the difference between fine and degenerated stocks. And we would be glad if the attention of the farmers at the Fair, should not be diverted from matters that intimately concern their welfare, by the simple show and senseless [illegible] too often encouraged and seen at fairs. In this particular, there ought to be a decided change for the better. We want our farmers to go from the fair with minds well stored with ideas of improvements in various subjects presented, and with a determination to make them useful to themselves.

GARDEN VEGETABLES. — We have seen the finest vegetables at our State Fairs, and the impression created was, that our soils were well suited to their production. And yet how true it is that the present Spring they are rarely to be had, and that those obtained are not of the best. We are told that in some of the upper counties, that most essential vegetable, the potato, can scarcely be had for love or money. Vegetables from California have in some instances, been transported to Salem from California! We know that most of the vegetables consumed in Portland at this time were grown in California! And yet we have the finest soil [illegible] and we have many small farmers complaining of hard times. It is always hard times with those who have nothing to sell and everything to buy.

PATENT OF TRAVEL WEST. — The post commander at Fort Laramie states that of the number of teams which passed Forts Laramie and Hall, last season, 63,000 passed the former and 27,000 the latter, en route for Idaho, Montana, and Nevada, making in all, estimating three persons to a team, which is a very low estimate, as nearly 4,000 Mormons are embraced in the number, 270,000 souls! With these figures staring one in the face, who can doubt the facts of an empire rising in the far west, on the Pacific slope and in the Rocky Mountains.

TO BE EXECUTED TO-DAY. — Beale and Baker, the murderers of Delaney, are to-day to suffer the penalty that the law affixes to their monstrous crime. The authorities of Salem are taking proper precautions against any disturbance. These two criminals are guilty of the greatest offense human beings can commit, and it is but justice that they should expiate the crime with their lives.

NO TELEGRAMS. — The California line was working during the early part of yesterday. During the afternoon it parted somewhere south of Canyonville. We are therefore deprived of our regular dispatches.

A man was robbed yesterday in Rogue river valley of $2,500. Name not known. It is thought the robber cut the telegraph line.

THE Sheriff of Marion county requests the saloon keepers of Salem to close their establishments on Wednesday next until after one o'clock p. m., and thus aid him in keeping order and quiet in the city.

The confessions of Beale and Baker are printed in pamphlet form, and will be sold on Wednesday next. The proceeds of the sale are to be given to the wives of the criminals. — Statesman.

The bridge for the railroad over the Susquehannah at Havre de Grace, Maryland, will be finished this year. The piers are about done, and rise through water 75 feet deep. It will be the largest and finest bridge on this continent.

FETID BREATH. — Among all the disagreeable consequences that follow fast the decay of the teeth, an impure breath must be the most unpleasant and mortifying to its possessor, as it is the most inexcusable and offensive in society. How often are lovers or experiences a distant coldness shown even from the best of friends — or perhaps the one most fondly cherished, from this source. You are ignorant of the cause yourself, the subject is so delicate — your most intimate friend will not mention it. Why not remove this one great barrier to your health, beauty and happiness, at once by using that justly popular Dentifrice, Fragrant SOZODONT, the most convenient, pleasant and efficacious gem for the toilet the world has ever produced.

Sold by Druggists everywhere at 75 cents per bottle.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of two executions, now in my hands, issued out of the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for the county of Multnomah, one on a judgment wherein Wm. B. Carr is plaintiff and C. C. Robbins is defendant, the other wherein Patrick Conway is plaintiff and C. C. Robbins defendant, I will expose to public sale, at auction, in front of the Court House door in Portland, on Saturday, the 27th day of May, A. D. 1865, the following described real estate, as the property of said C. C. Robbins, to wit: Lots one, two, three, four, five, six, seven and eight (1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8) in Block fourteen (14) in Couch's addition to the city of Portland, Multnomah county, Oregon; also lot seven (7) in block twenty [illegible] in [illegible] addition to the city of Portland, county and State aforesaid.

Sale to take place between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day.

JACOB STITZEL,
Sheriff of Multnomah county, Oregon.
Portland, April 29th 1865.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for Multnomah county, in a suit wherein George Lotz is plaintiff and [illegible] are defendants, and [illegible] court upon said decree and to me directed, commanding me to [illegible] a sale of the following described real estate [illegible] judgment [illegible] forty nine dollars and ninety cents [illegible] interest thereon [illegible] November [illegible] 1865, at eighteen per cent. per annum and costs [illegible] I will expose to public sale in front of the Court House door, in Multnomah county, on Saturday, the 27th day of May, A. D. 1865, between the hours of 9 o'clock, a. m. and [illegible] the following described real estate: The north half of the north east quarter of section [illegible] township [illegible] north, range 2 west of Willamette meridian, containing eighty (80) acres, situated in Multnomah County, State of Oregon.

When we consider the number of human beings that die with Consumption every year, the importance of a medicine that will cure all pulmonary affections that tend to this complaint, and even to arrest the destroyer after it has adhered its presence in the system, must be admitted to be beyond all estimate. This wonderful power is claimed to be possessed by Allen's Lung Balsam. For sale by SMITH & DAVIS, Agents, Portland, Oregon.

Also, by the Dealers in Family Medicines, generally.

Brandreth's Pills. Their Qualities. In small and repeated doses the effect of Brandreth's Vegetable Universal Pills is to increase the activity of the secreting and excreting organs. The blood discharged becomes more liquid and contains a larger proportion of bile. The operation of this extraordinary medicine does not stop here, the membranes of the lungs, of the eyes, and all the membranes become moister, the skin becomes damper and at the same time warmer. [illegible] In large doses, say from five to ten Pills, they act as a powerful purgative, clearing the bowels first of their contents, and then acting upon the internal organs, cleansing them of slime, mucus, or any excretions not required for their healthy action. Thus the action of Brandreth's Pills is what is required to bring about that state in all the [illegible] which result in their full restoration to health. [illegible]

Cure Your Cold, Save Your Lungs.

NEWELL'S
PULMONARY SYRUP

HAS

CURED THOUSANDS!
And it will Cure You!

"A Cough is generally the effect of a Cold, which has either been improperly treated or entirely neglected. When it proves obstinate there is Always reason to fear the consequences,

as this shows a weak state of the lungs, and is often the forerunner of Consumption. — (Buchanan's Domestic Medicine.

STOP THAT COUGHING!

"Some of you can't, and we pity you. You have tried every remedy but the one destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supersede all similar preparations. It is but just to you you should be reminded to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure, but

NEWELL'S
Pulmonary Syrup!

Is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefited by its surprising curative powers.

WHAT KILLED HIM?

Dr. Hall, in his "Journal of Health," speaking of the death of Washington Irving, asks the above question, and adds: "He might have remained with us for some years to come, had it not been for advice, kindly intended, no doubt, but given in thoughtlessness and reckless ignorance.

He Had a Cold!

Which, by some injudicious prescription, had been converted into asthma." Let me say to Dr. Hall that that "prescription" was not

NEWELL'S
PULMONARY SYRUP.

KEEP IT IN THE HOUSE, use it freely, give it to your children upon the slightest indications of a Cold, and you will think and speak of it as all do who have become acquainted with its merits.

A Poem by Abraham Lincoln

[The following poem, written by him whose untimely end our nation and all humanity mourns, was published in The Weekly [illegible] Aug [illegible] 1863. It [illegible]]

Oh, why should the Spirit of Mortal be Proud?

Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
Like a swift fleeting meteor, a fast flying cloud,
A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave,
He passeth from life to his rest in the grave.

The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade,
Be scattered around, and together be laid;
As the young and the old, and the low and the high
Shall crumble to dust and together shall lie.

The infant a mother attended and loved,
The mother that infant's affection who proved,
The father that mother and infant who blessed,
Each, all are away to that dwelling of rest.

The maid on whose brow, on whose cheek, in whose eye,
Shone beauty and pleasure—her triumphs are by;
And alike from the minds of the living erased
Are the memories of mortals who loved her and praised.

The hand of the king that the sceptre hath borne—
The brow of the priest that the mitre hath worn,
The eye of the sage, and the heart of the brave,
Are hidden and lost in the depths of the grave.

The peasant whose lot was to sow and to reap,
The herdsman who climbed with his goats up the steep—
The beggar who wandered in search of his bread
Have faded away like the grass that we tread.

So the multitude goes, like the flower or weed
That withers away to let others succeed;
So the multitude comes, even those we behold,
To repeat every tale that has often been told.

For we are the same our fathers have been;
We see the same sights our fathers have seen;
We drink the same stream, we see the same sun,
And run the same course our fathers have run.

The thoughts we are thinking our fathers did think;
From the death we are shrinking our fathers did shrink;
To the life we are clinging, our fathers did cling,
But it speeds from us all like the bird on the wing.

They loved—but the story we cannot unfold;
They scorned—but the heart of the haughty is cold;
They grieved—but no wail from their slumbers will come;
They joyed—but the tongue of their gladness is dumb.

They died—ah they died—we things that are now
That walk on the turf that lies over their brow,
And make in their dwellings a transient abode,
Meet the things that they met on their pilgrimage road.

Yea, hope and despondency, pleasure and pain
Are mingled together in sunshine and rain;
And the smile and the tear, and the song and the dirge,
Will follow each other like surge upon surge.

'Tis the wink of an eye—'tis the draught of a breath—
From the blossom of health to the paleness of death,
From the gilded saloon to the bier and the shroud—
Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?

My Penny Dip

What was it? A tallow candle, to be sure. The gas wouldn't burn, the kerosene strangled me with its noxious odor, the fluid sputtered, burned blue, and went out. I am afraid of the dark, the ghostly blackness which makes one's eye's ache with its want of light, that palpable gloom which seems to beat like a roomful of palpitations of the heart around you, above you, about you, everywhere; that visible nothing, which holds the tables, the chairs, the portraits you are familiar with, yet hides them in its black veil from your view, that empty fullness through which you thrust out your groping arms, then shrink back, oppressed with a presence you can neither hear, see, nor feel.

"Milly," I said to my little maid, "run somewhere and get me a light."

She ran to the grocer's wife, and came back with a penny dip in a brass candlestick.

As she placed it on my table, went out and shut the door, the little boy in bronze on my mantle raised his hammer and struck the figure of time twelve ringing blows upon the heart. It was midnight.

The candle burned clearly. I resumed the old volume of German legends I was reading, and as I laid my finger on a paragraph, and paused to wonder on the possibility of spirits returning to earth to wreak vengeance on foes or work weal to friends, I heard a deep sigh at my elbow.

I turned and beheld the ghost of my grandmother.

I knew her from the resemblance to her portrait. She wore the same white cap with its border plaited round her face, the same prim dress with which I had grown familiar in the picture. She died twenty years ago. I was named for her.

I drew up the rocking chair for the ghost. She sat down in it. A pillow could not have sunk more noiselessly than she did. She kept her hands in the same position on her breast that somebody tied them twenty years ago.

She fixed her keen black eyes upon me—beautiful eyes, which I had always admired in the portrait. None of her descendants had such eyes.

"I could not come," she said, in deep sepulchral tones, "in gas light. Ghosts and gas lights are at war always. As for kerosene oil, we groan in spirit at its use. How mortal noses can, night after night, inhale the odor it emits, is a wonder. It is worse than brimstone. We have put our cold lips under your chimneys, and blown our ghostly breaths into the flame. We have seen the chimneys blackened with smoke, and apartments fill with disgusting fragrance. People only said the lamp was in a draft. They moved it and bore with it. We shall have to yield. Kerosene is a modern discovery. Ghosts are old fashioned. To be out of date is to be out of mind. Your tallow candle pleases me. We ghosts like the light of other days around us. We always, in the body, burned tallow candles."

The fine eyes of my grandmother gazed at my penny dip steadfastly for a moment. She seemed to see visions and dream dreams.

"My dear," she said, "you are the first of the family that has returned to candles since the innovation of gas. You are indebted to your dip for my presence. How hollow I would have looked under a chandelier—how bloodless, how white! As it is I think I am looking very natural, am I not?"

She glanced up at her portrait and waited my reply.

"A little pale, grandmother," I said, "but tell me, dear madam, if your pursuits in the other world are of such a nature that they admit of your returning to this at any time?"

"By no means. I am permitted to appear in this sphere but seldom. My influence I can make felt often. I have not been seen before since my coffin lid was closed. I am come to tell you there arose a yell in Pandemonium. I looked in to see whence it came. I found the great chamber assigned to little children, and which is always full of little ones of all sizes and ages, the scene of great commotion. Infants were crawling into corners, three year old toddlers were tottering out of the way. Older ones were hastily finding seats and all voices wore a listening expression. A small voice was saying:

"'It was no fault of mine that brought me here. I, who am now but five years old, might have lived to be fifty. Nature unfortunately gave me a fine physical development. My chest was round and full, my skin clear, my limbs finely moulded. My birth place in a cold climate. My tender mother proud of her offspring bared my neck and arms in the chill winters, when her rose-bushes and vines were packed in warm straw and thoroughly protected from every blast. I was brought down to be viewed by company and exposed to different temperatures as I went from room to room. My mother, wrapped in soft velvet and comfortable silks, did not suffer. I did, but I could not tell her so. I took cold. I became a great trouble in the house. My beauty faded, I lingered on month after month and died at last at five years old of consumption. My mother cried over my little coffin. I knew but couldn't tell her then that her own vanity had placed me there—would send me here.'

"'I was trotted to death,' cried a more piping voice, as the speaker sat down. 'A woman was hired expressly to take care of me, and she took care that I should not want for exercise. Her days and nights were spent in keeping me going. "Up up upy," and "down, down," I was. That unknown wonder, perpetual motion, was to be found in my nurse's knees. Every bone in my poor little body was racked by my canter. Flesh was sore. My [illegible] I was milk and came up cheese. If I cried I was trotted; if I screamed I was trotted; if I was still I was trotted. I became little better than a human churn, from which the butter had been taken, and the sour milk left standing. My brains turned to bruises, my blood to whey, my bones grew so sharp they almost pierced the knees which trotted them. As I began to cut teeth my tongue was constantly jolted between my jaws and in danger of being bitten off. I dared not whine, for I knew the penalty. I began at last to calculate how long the torture could possibly continue. Warm weather was coming on and I thought one or the other of us must soon give up the ghost, as I as my nurse's exertions were almost superhuman. I imagined that perhaps I might outlast her. One unlucky day, however, my mother entering the room unexpectedly, I smiled at her. I had never done so before.

"The darling [illegible]," cried my parent, "[illegible] known me."

"[illegible] nothing rather," said the nurse, "[illegible] wind in its stomach!"

Forthwith she proceeded to treat me. Every thing of her [illegible] in the [illegible] was, I know, a [illegible]. I [illegible] never [illegible] again. My faithful nurse continued her efforts until I was [illegible] of existence in the poor old woman's [illegible].

"I [illegible] a little fellow, rising from his seat with his blue eyes [illegible] and his [illegible]. [illegible] delirium tremens. At the age of six months I was an [illegible]. I [illegible] every time I was uneasy [illegible] was administered to me [illegible] but [illegible] I was [illegible] this [illegible] thing that was put between my speechless lips [illegible]. My mother's milk was sweet [illegible] given me was sweet and [illegible] and [illegible] with a draught of [illegible]. It was warmed and sweetened that [illegible] make it as much like my mother's as possible. [illegible] other way do we poor babies have of expressing our feelings and the chances are ten to one that we will be misunderstood. [illegible] I was put to the breast; this at such times I would indignantly refuse. Then there would be a commotion. 'Nurse,' my poor mother would say, 'what shall we do with him?' The nurse was a stout hearty old woman, who always made a practice of tasting whatever was provided for her charge. Her sovereign remedy was liquor. I was taken, and a spoonful administered at a time. At first I rebelled. I strangled, kicked and coughed. The firm hand held the spoon to my little tongue and down went its contents in spite of me. It was given me readily, for after a few moments of wild glee I fell into a drunken stupor which gave my attendants many opportunities of enjoying themselves, as my sleep was sure to be long and sound.

"At length [illegible] assailed me. During my whole life no one had ever thought of giving me a single spoonful of the water I had craved, the cooling, cheering, refreshing drop of water. Now I no longer cared for it. In my wildest frenzies I [illegible] of having the [illegible] down as many [illegible] went the fiery drink until finally I was literally burnt out. I was nothing but a cinder within, a shell without. My stomach was [illegible] to a crisp, my intestines were shrivelled, my lungs no longer filled with pure air, but [illegible] forth only the fiery fumes that had consumed me. I died. I was good for nothing. I hope whatever form my dust is destined to take on earth it will not be watered, as when I inhabited it with alcohol."

'As this speaker ceased, there arose a wail of sympathy, such as had first attracted me to the pandemonian chamber; as it subsided, another little figure had taken the stand.

'My legs,' he said, 'brought me out of the world. My mother labored under the strange delusion that her child was born a Highland laddie, of American parents and in America. I was dressed, or left undressed, rather, in short plaid stockings reaching to the calf of my leg, and an elegant kilt reaching just to the knee. My limbs were moulded in cherubic form and when exposed in the nursery were pretty. But the nursery was too narrow a field in which to display my beauty. One bitter cold day I was walked out over the icy streets, the keen wind chapping my flesh and chilling my blood till my knees looked like twin nutmeg graters painted purple. I used to look at my mother's long comfortable skirts and leggings drawn up over warm hose and wondered if she could survive a fashion such as I wore, if adopted by herself. I became afflicted with inflammatory rheumatism, and unable to endure the pain, gave up the ghost.'

'I felt sad,' said my grandmother, 'that this victim was a sacrifice to a fashion started since my day. I know that your father was never dressed in such a ridiculous style when a little boy, for with my own hands I knit his warm woolen stockings and saw that his comfortable little trousers came well over the instep of his little calfskin shoes.

'The next speaker was a dreamy faced little girl, who trembled as she rose and said—

''I am an opium eater. My death warrant was written on the label of the first bottle of Godfrey's Cordial brought into my mother's house. A few drops at first sufficed to hush my feeble cries. Then Godfrey's Cordial would not do. A few drops of pure laudanum was administered. Soon I could not go to sleep without it. Then my nurse would give me a small opium pill in my panada. Of course I was but little trouble. I was a deep sleeper, but my digestion became impaired, too much sleep weakened me, and I knew no natural slumber. My eyes became like those of a sleep walker, full of dreams when wide awake. I lost my appetite, my head grew full of pain, my baby heart was always aching. I closed my eyes one day forever on the home where I felt I could be little loved, where my low wails were never permitted to appeal to those around me, but were hushed at once, where my blue eyes were scarcely ever permitted to look around in the world in which they had been opened, and where, instead of proper care and food and exercise, the baleful pill and unerring sleep were all that was offered me. There are many parents who seem to think children must pass their childhood out of the way, and only get in the way when they have become, in spite of all sorts of ill treatment, useful or ornamental members of society.'

"This child was still speaking," said my grandmother, "when I rushed out. I had been a mother once, and I could not listen to these innocents in that fearful wailing chamber, recapitulating the woes that had sent them there, any longer.

I felt impelled to revisit earth. I came. In no light could I make myself visible to you until your tallow candle was brought in.

"My dear, remember what I have told you. Some of these days you may be a mother. Be more than careful of the sacred charge of little children. Think for them—feel for them. Do not, to ease your cares, sink them into unnatural slumbers, or to give them over to selfish nurses. Upon you hangs their lives, in a great measure their happiness, both here and hereafter—I beg you will give—"

Just at this moment the cock crew loudly. The voice at my elbow was still. I looked around; the rocking chair was empty, the ghost had vanished.

WHAT IS TO BECOME OF OUR GOLD PRODUCT OF 1865? A correspondent of the Boston Advertiser discusses this question as follows:

As the balance of trade is now in our favor with foreign countries, and as gold is not at present (or likely to be very soon) the currency of this country, the question becomes of immense importance. This is a gold producing country to the extent of some $7[illegible],000,000 annually, and it is all important that it should find a ready market.

At present gold is and has been for a month past (for the first time since 1849,) some two or three per cent. below par with the foreign countries with whom we make or settle our exchanges, with a strong tendency to a still further decline.

Our enterprising importers the last year have acted the 'M[illegible] in Egypt,' and secured to us one (if not seven) years' supply in anticipation of our wants, and as they are about all paid for abroad very little gold will be required for importations. Our farmers at home being under the delusion that the people would consume more of a high price than a low one, doubled or trebled the price of their products, and the result is that the bulk of their last year's crop is now on their hands, which must be exported this spring and summer or spoil.

In addition to the balance of trade in merchandise in foreign countries (which is now in our favor) we have large revenues constantly accumulating in London from the sale of our [illegible] and from the freights of our vessels which are remitted there from every foreign country we deal with. It is well known that foreigners are buying our Government bonds to a large extent. At any rate they are more likely to buy ours than we are to buy theirs, for our rate of interest is higher than theirs.

As we have now the safest and most convenient currency that we have ever had since the formation of our Government, the people will not consent to have, and do not require gold to make or [illegible] their exchanges. There will be a small amount required by the artisans, but beyond their requirements I do not see to what other purposes it can be applied, except the profitless [illegible] of wearing.

At a mass meeting in Brooklyn to celebrate the victories, Rev. Dr. Willetts told this story: In a Sunday school the other day, while the recitation of verses of Scripture was in progress, a little lad suddenly exclaimed, "I know a verse." He was desired to recite it, and did so thus: "If any one attempts to haul down the American flag, shoot him on the spot." "And that," said the speaker, "is the gospel according to General Dix."

Mr. Garrison, in announcing the discontinuance of the Liberator, says it seems to him historically fitting that it should simply cover the whole period of the struggle against slavery, and should terminate with its extinction.

More than thirty patents were issued in the last six months of 1864 for inventions relating to petroleum, such as drills for boring wells, etc.

MATTERS IN WASHINGTON.—A correspondent, writing from Washington, April [illegible] says: [illegible] the Government has [illegible] duty [illegible] of the Navy [illegible] expenses of this [illegible] Department [illegible] in all the Departments [illegible] civil life. FORTIFICATIONS AROUND RICHMOND.—[illegible] with lost Summer's vegetation, while some [illegible] badly washed by late rains [illegible] the [illegible] and against assault [illegible] sharp [illegible] stakes [illegible] project from a common centre like spokes in a wheel. [illegible] one long hub extending many miles, resting on long sharp iron spokes, which [illegible] project into the air [illegible] that a dog cannot creep through, while if he should be able to roll the thing over, he but turns up other spokes to meet him in the face.

Gentlemen:—From representations made by Mr. Lillie, I was induced to purchase of him one of his

So Called "Fire Proof Safes"

On the 19th of February last a fire occurred in our [illegible] a number of buildings [illegible] own with the rest. We rescued our books [illegible] After the fire the so called [illegible] was taken [illegible] we found that Everything had been Destroyed.

We send you the safe, with what is left of the papers and you will see that not one of them is legible or strong enough to sustain its own weight. Having the curiosity to know how our neighbors fared in this fire, we noticed McKenzie & Hardy just opening their safe (TILTON & McFARLAND'S make) and its contents were found to be

In Perfect Condition.

This led me to further investigation, and we found to our astonishment that from the large amount of combustible material in Messrs. McK. & H.'s cellar [illegible] their safe was subjected to a much greater heat than that of our own, we being in the clothing business and had but little in the cellar. There was [illegible] Lillie's safes here subjected to the same fire [illegible] better than ours.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servants
(Signed) GEO. L. CHESBORO & CO

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus. CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts, gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it, if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
